eReadingPro is a system for teaching reading to individuals of all ages who are visual learners. It is a whole-word approach reading program that takes your child from reading single words, to couplets, to phrases, to sentences, all in a systematic approach to reading. The program's process of learning and recognizing words makes it very simple for your child to remember and READ!

Attendees will learn:

- The importance of teaching a child to read early.
- An understanding of learning styles and learning strategies.
- Reasons why your child may be struggling with reading and how to help.
- How to set up a reading program.
- How to create flashcards and books for your child.
- How to use flashcards effectively.
- How to teach your child to read single words, couplets, phrases, sentences and books using our program, and why this method is so effective.
- How teaching reading improves speech, language and memory development!
- How to teach reading to teens and adults.

eReadingPro:

Learn the skills you need in order to teach your child to read!

Thursday, November 18th, 2010

Who should attend?

This workshop is appropriate for ALL educators, parents, caretakers, paraprofessionals and therapists who interact with students who have Down syndrome.

What can I learn?

Workshop attendees, including parents and educators, will be given the tools to assist individuals of all ages who may be struggling with reading.

Who is presenting?

Denise MacDonald is the President and Founder of eReadingPro, and was Co-Founder (and Originator) of the original Out of the Box Reading program. Armed with both a clinical and real-life understanding of neuropsychology, Denise set out to make a difference. Through eReadingPro and her former company Out of the Box Reading, Denise is determined to give parents and educators the tools to assist individuals of all ages who may be struggling with reading.

Denise Macdonald presents workshops, consults and speaks at conferences internationally with a focus on how children who are visual learners learn to read - particularly children with Down syndrome. She recently was a Canadian presenter at the Down Syndrome World Congress in Dublin, Ireland in 2009.
